

BOOTS + TIGHTS = BOOTIGHTS

Shelby Mason, a Bremerton native, created a product that has taken the fashion world by storm. She says that a combination of poor circulation and humiliation led her to create Bootights, a simple, functional product. "Like many gals who love to wear tights with their boots, I've always been forced to layer a pair of socks over my tights for comfort and warmth," Mason said. "My 'a-ha' moment of truth came during a business trip through Chicago's O'Hare Airport and the obligatory security check removal of my boots. Suddenly that cute outfit didn't seem so cute with my dear old Dad's borrowed, ugly white socks exposed for all the world to see.

"The resulting public indignation over my less-than-fashionable attire got me wondering, 'Why should women always be forced to sacrifice comfort for style? There must be a better way!'" Bootights are premium tights with a performance sock attached. They keep legs looking amazing and feet feeling great all day long, she says.

Mason's product was featured on "Oprah" and "The View" and can now be found at Nordstrom and at boutiques around the country. bootights.com »
